Custer County Emergency Manager Mark Rempe presented a new Computer Aided Dispatching (CAD) system to enhance emergency services provided to the public. Rempe reported he had negotiated savings on the product. A contract to purchase the system for $95,000, followed by a $49,000 annual maintenance fee. Rempe noted the system cost would be in the range of $219,000, and that E/M would be able to make the transition with no change to their budget. Rempe also said if additional emergency management organizations work with Custer County, the annual fee would be split between the groups. The Board tabled the issue by asking Rempe to research other options to ensure due diligence and open communication with all affected organizations.

Arnold Fire Chief Andrew Tickle told the group that we need to continue to be progressive and move forward. He also stated that as agencies purchase new equipment, without a modern dispatch system, those vehicles cannot be used efficiently.

Gibbons asked about response to 911 calls. Rempe stated when he started response to from receiving 911 call to page out was 7 minutes and 42 seconds, totally unacceptable, to now it's 15-30 seconds.

Paul Holland EMS member and City Councilmen questioned if other places had been checked for different systems. Neither the fire chief or the EMS Chief were involved in the meeting about the CAD program. Paul believed that given how much the city pays they should be a part of the decision making process. Paul feels we need to look and see what else is out there. He stated that sooner or later the county will be asking for more money.

Mason Holmes paramedic and Public Information Officer with Broken Bow Ambulance Service very pro CAD. Asked if this was the first time the CAD system has been discussed. Was due diligence completed on an alternative system, was cost comparison done between multiple vendors, how many options were evaluated in price and what were those prices. Neither BB Ambulance Service nor Broken Bow Fire Department were invited to any discussion about a system that impacts both agencies. This continues a pattern of the emergency manager excluding our agencies from communication and dispatch decisions including EMS Chief learned of this CAD system meeting through a third party not emergency management. When he asked about said meeting he was told it was really for law enforcement input only. So he didn't attend, passed that information onto the fire chief who also did not attend nor receive an invite. It was later learned that most if not all the other fire departments were invited but were present and involved that day. Our EMS Chief was told he could not attend the complex fire hot wash because he is not a fire chief. Very important note our EMS chief our ambulance service is a separate entity from our fire department. He does not answer to our fire chief. That is different from almost every other fire department in the area, not uncommon. We asked for dispatch to include physical addresses in page outs rather than business names only. We were told it is our responsibility to take responders around town not dispatches responsibility to provide addresses. We have repeatedly asked emergency management to enable recorded dispatch audio in our I AM RESPONDING system. Nearly two years later that remains unresolved though its active in every other department in the county to our knowledge. We requested dispatch reduce the excessive number of IAR device notifications due to responder notification fatigue. We were told other agencies like it, so we won't be doing that, and has not changed. Broken Bow funds approximately 49% of the budget for communications which exceeds a quarter million dollars annually. Yet two city department chiefs affected by dispatch operations are consistently left out of decision making and potentially the city police chief as well although I don't know that information, I didn't speak to him about it. To my knowledge the city does not receive reporting on how its funds are used or have a clear mechanism to audit spending. There do not appear to be regular communication or coordination meetings between dispatch and the three city emergency agencies that rely on it, meaning police, fire and EMS all being separate agencies. I fully support implementing the CAD system. It will enhance dispatch capabilities, and will benefit responders, citizens. It is a very good thing, and I do agree with Mark, what they currently have seems antiquated on the dispatch side and is not adequate. I come from a 911 dispatcher background Chase County Nebraska, 8 years. We transitioned from Excel spreadsheets to a cloud based CAD system, Caseware based out of Colorado. I do know value firsthand. Advancing a purchase without including the emergency entities serving the largest population municipality in the county while continuing to disregard reasonable operational requests and also where the city provides a good chunk of the budget is concerning and short sided. Custer County Emergency Management services the entire county including Broken Bow, including Broken Bow ambulance service, Broken Bow fire department and all the citizens within the city limits. Collaboration is essential, not opposed to CAD systems but ensuring due diligence was completed for the best solution is essential the ongoing communication and administration issues must be addressed. I share these concerns as both a taxpayer of Broken Bow and Custer County where tax dollars of both entities support Communications, I believe there is a solution out there that will work well for everyone. This could be that solution, but it requires transparency, involvement of all effected agencies and responsible stewardship of public funds. I hope this board can work in good faith to remedy these issues for all involved. Egos cannot get in the way of emergency preparedness.

Chris Anderson, Chief of Police Broken Bow, I cannot speak to a lot of the EMS dispatch side. I can on the law enforcement side. I've never been in an agency where they have actually used a CAD system. What I heard from a lot of people they like it. It helps out a lot. A lot of streamlining information that we don't get right now but with the system that we do have it works for us. There are some conveniences that I've seen with the new system, but we've also heard a lot like Buffalo County visited with them. Their support is horrendous. They've actually at least once, maybe multiple times, had to withhold payments to get them to fix issues. That is a great concern. Another issue was uploading statues into the system for law enforcement. Had a different company upload the statues, incorrectly. Had to correct 25,000 entries. I believe our current system may not be the greatest thing out there, but it works for us.

Sheriff Dan Osmond, when Mark came to me with this it was on the basis that dispatch needs to be a lot better. They need a CAD system that works because they don't have one. Right now, we have one company that is our "CAD" for lack of a better word, and our records management which is me and Chief Anderson and our jail management so one company does all that now. We are looking at changing to a company that would give us a really good CAD system. It is a really neat piece of equipment. What I saw yesterday in buffalo county the CAD systems is pretty awesome. Records management side of this company will be a struggle for law enforcement. It's very work intensive to try and make it work. We are going to have to work at it if we go with it on the law enforcement side. I will not move the jail system over. I am going to keep the jail the way it is. That is one of the reasons the price was reduced. I feel that way because what we have now works well for us. I don't want to make that change. Gave example of Buffalo County using this CAD system.

Central Square has never created its own software. It's always just bought companies and put them together and merged things. They are supposedly 1.2 billion dollars in debt from all their buying and selling. I think that is something that needs to be noted. Buffalo County has had this company and made a lateral move over to Central Square. They stayed with this company again. They like it. It works for them. Theres a lot of headaches. This companies support is the biggest problem. That's what worries Dan the most, going to need that, a lot of growing. Also have the ability to say no to records management. Only pay for a patch. Where do you want to put the risk? We have a really good price right now, may never get that again. Do we risk that price and go with it and live with it, deal with it and make it work, probably be good or maybe it won't. Or do we wait another year, talk to other entities say hey let's get on board, take this $50,000 and make it cheaper. Risk is do we wait a little bit and risk a good price, maybe get something better or get people on the same page and go that route. Spend time to get together with everyone, a year to make it work. I support Mark 100% in his decisions. He is trying to do what is best for his dispatch for right now and for the future, trying to get us ahead of the game. One way or another somethings got to be done. Whatever we go with, I will support Mark.

David Schmidt, Broken Bow City Administrator, sat through the presentation, looked like a fine piece of software. If its not going to cost us good with whatever. As for the user side, I rely on those using it to tell me if it's the right thing. Relatively indifferent. Ok with whatever as long as serves the needs of the first responders.

Chairman Blowers asked other vendors be contacted for pricing by March pr April before budget.

Rempe stated this could absolutely be done.

Recycling Center Manager Kelly Flynn began discussion on the Recycling Center. He has been collecting information regarding grant funding working with agencies such as Custer County Economic Development Corporation, the Broken Bow Chamber of Commerce, and the Custer County Foundation. Had identified two primary grant sources for recycling – the Nebraska Recycling Council and the Nebraska State Department of Water, Energy, and Environment (DWEE). Recycling Center has received grants from both organizations in the past, primarily for the purchase or replacement of equipment used in the Center. New funding from either source would not be available until January 2027.

Supervisors asked numerous questions. District 1 Supervisor Anne Gibbons asked about out-of-county users bringing cardboard to the Recycling Center, Flynn stated that such customers are charged $.02 per pound. The fee has been in place since 2018–Gibbons suggested this fee could be raised to help recover Center costs.

Govier asked Flynn whether bringing in materials from outside of the county was value-added or creating more work than could be supported by the Center’s current funding. Flynn stated the larger volume of recyclables that could be received and processed by the center, the better. Govier then noted that revenue and volume has decreased over the last 10 years. Flynn responded that the elimination of glass recycling impacted on the overall volume, along with the decrease in the actual number and size of printed newspapers affecting the volume of paper recycled. Other business changes, such as the end of an agreement with BD for cardboard recycling have also impacted the flow of materials through the Center.

Gibbons suggested that commercial users with high volumes of cardboard recycling should foot the majority of the bill, asking “why should I pay for their recycling?” Flynn noted that with a 2025 population of 10,485 people in Custer County, the total bill for each person is $16.69, per person, per year. Gibbons later stated that she felt there were better uses for the money spent on the Recycling Center has lost over the last five years on something positive for the county.

Flynn disputed the notion that the funding was a loss, responding that in that time the Center had recycled over 3,000 tons of material that would have otherwise ended up in a landfill. The recycled materials saved funding on landfill fees and were re-used to create new products. “Recycling is designed to reduce solid waste – and its doing that,” said Flynn. “It’s been successful every year.”

Flynn pointed to the 10,000 lbs. of materials recycled by the Broken Bow Public Schools from packing materials for items brought in for new classrooms since August as another example of cardboard kept out of landfills. As the discussion turned to charging fees to different communities for use of the Custer County Recycling Center, it was noted that at least some had expressed a concern that the budget for their agency was set – adding new expenses was not going to be feasible at this point.

Markham suggested that it was going to be necessary to both have a plan for how much the county might charge outside users, and to know what communities would be willing to contribute.

Blowers noted that one prior suggestion had been to place the fate of the Recycling Center on a future ballot. Blowers and Custer County Attorney Steven Bowers reviewed the requirements to do so and determined this would not be feasible.

Govier reiterated that the county is still in a lease agreement with Myers Construction for use of the building housing the Recycling Center until February 2028 – another issue to consider regarding the fate of the program.

Motion by Gibbons 2nd by Longmore to notify Myers Construction that Custer County does not want to automatically renew the lease agreement. Roll call vote. Ayes-All

The supervisors discussed attempting to get support from cities and villages within Custer County and out of county locations currently using the Recycling Center.

Public comment was opened

Mark Cardoza noted though that this may not be a question of killing recycling as much as simply fiscal responsibility. The only way you're going to get more money in the future is to raise taxes

Donnis Hueftle-Bullock noted that recycling is not difficult, but that it is important as a duty to future generations to minimize what is being put into the land.

Joan Birnie stated everyone should commend Kelly for his work and time he has put in. He is an asset to the county. Government is a service, don't make money. Don't know why recycling has been singled out. We pay taxes for things we don't use.

Cliff Burnett don't understand why it keeps being brought up when it has been funded for the year. This is a public service, and it's not made to make money.

Denise Sughayar expresses support for the Custer County Recycling Center stating we're just beginning to scratch the surface as far as the impacts of microplastics on our environment and health, going to see that continue to increase as all these things we're putting into the landfill start to decompose.

Longmore stated he felt the towns need to step up.

Bobbi Kirkpatrick doesn't live in city, agreed with other comments.

Govier commented that the cost of the employees' wages and benefits wouldn't go away, be absorbed into another budget
